Adult Agreement for Services/ Informed Consent

Introduction This agreement is intended to provide _____ (herein “client”) with important information regarding the practices, policies and procedures of HOPE Counseling Center, a non-profit agency, and to clarify the terms of the professional therapeutic relationship between psychotherapist and client. Any questions or concerns regarding the contents of this Agreement should be discussed prior to signing it.

Psychotherapist Background and Qualifications HOPE Counseling Center employs associates and trainees under the supervision of a licensed psychotherapist. Confidentiality is kept at the highest level possible. Cases will be discussed in group supervision where supervisor and other psychotherapists can guide and direct the trainee or associate. Supervision includes discussion of treatment planning and interventions to utilize in therapy sessions. Our psychotherapists may be treating multiple members of the same family and information may be shared during this time.

Your psychotherapist identifies as an _____ MFT Trainee _____ Associate PCC/MFT.

Process of Therapy Joining with clients to communicate, solve problems, and learn to maintain positive interactions by discovering the unproductive interactions and practicing techniques that lead to more fulfillments within. Supporting clients to transcend, heal, and get beyond old and possibly ineffective patterns of interaction that interfere with fulfilling relationships. Using a variety of invitations to help clients connect with self and then with others, including dialogue, expressive arts, imagery, along with other experiential modalities. Invite clients to go beyond just the story and join issues that arise in the moment, keeping the focus on self and taking responsibility for what they can change. Clients can at any time accept or refuse an invitation.

Risks and Benefits of Therapy Psychotherapy is a process in which we discuss a myriad of issues, events, experiences, and memories for the purpose of creating positive change so clients can experience life more fully. It provides an opportunity to better and more deeply understand oneself, as well as, any problems or difficulties clients may be experiencing. Psychotherapy is a joint effort between client and psychotherapist. Progress and success may vary depending upon the particular problems or issues being addressed, as well as many other factors.

Participating in therapy may result in a number of benefits, including, but not limited to, reduced stress and anxiety, a decrease in negative thoughts and self-sabotaging behaviors, improved interpersonal relationships, increased comfort in social, work, and family settings, increased capacity for intimacy, and increased self-confidence. Such benefits may also require substantial effort on the part of the client, including an active participation in the therapeutic process, honesty, and a willingness to change feelings, thoughts, and behaviors. There is no guarantee that therapy will yield any or all of the benefits listed above.

Participating in therapy may also involve some discomfort, including remembering and discussing unpleasant events, feelings, and experiences. The process may evoke strong feelings of sadness, anger, fear, etc. There may be times in which a client's perceptions and assumptions are challenged, and different perspectives offered. The issues presented by clients may result in unintended outcomes, including changes in personal relationships. Clients should be aware that any decision on the status of their personal relationships is their responsibility.

During the therapeutic process, many clients find that they feel worse before they feel better. This is generally a normal course of events. Personal growth and change may be easy and swift at times, but may also be slow and frustrating. Client should address any concerns they have regarding progress in therapy with their psychotherapist.

Professional Consultation Professional consultation is an important component of a healthy psychotherapy practice. Regular participation in clinical, ethical, and legal consultation with appropriate professionals is done on a regular basis. During such consultations, personally identifying information concerning clients will not be shared.

Records and Record Keeping Therapist may take notes during session, and will also produce other notes and records regarding treatment. These notes constitute psychotherapist's clinical and business records, which by law psychotherapist is required to maintain. Such records are the sole property of psychotherapist. Therapist will not alter normal record keeping process at the request of any client or representative. Should client or representative request a copy of psychotherapist's records, such a request must be made in writing. Therapist reserves the right, under California law, to provide client, or representative, with a treatment summary in lieu of actual records. Therapist also reserves the right to refuse to produce a copy of the record under certain circumstances, but may, as requested, provide a copy of the record to another treating health care provider. Representative will generally have the right to access the records regarding client. However, this right is subject to certain exceptions set forth in California law. Should representative request access to psychotherapist's records, such a request will be responded to in accordance with California law. Therapist will maintain client's records, once therapy is terminated, for seven years. Client's records will then be destroyed in a manner that preserves client's confidentiality.

Psychotherapist-Client Privilege The information disclosed by a client, as well as any records created, is subject to the psychotherapist-client privilege. The psychotherapist-client privilege results from the special relationship between therapist and client in the eyes of the law. It is akin to the attorney-client privilege or doctor-patient privilege. If a subpoena is received for records, deposition testimony, or testimony in a court of law, the clinician will assert the psychotherapist-client privilege on client's behalf until instructed, in writing, to do otherwise by client or client's representative. Client should be aware that they might be waiving the psychotherapist-client privilege if they make their mental or emotional state an issue in a legal proceeding. Client should address any concerns they might have regarding the psychotherapist-client privilege with an attorney.

Confidentiality The information disclosed by a client is generally confidential and will not be released to any third party without written authorization from client, except where required or permitted by law. Exceptions to confidentiality, include, but are not limited to, reporting child, elder, and dependent adult abuse, when a client makes a serious threat of violence towards a reasonably identifiable victim, or when a client is dangerous to him/herself or the person or property of another.

Email/Text Client is welcome to leave email messages at any time by sending a message directly to your psychotherapist. If the email requires a response, psychotherapist will make every effort to respond promptly, but be advised that it may take up to hours. If client emails during the evening, on a weekend, or over a holiday, psychotherapist may be unable to respond until the next business day.

While client is welcome to send psychotherapist multiple messages, email communication is not meant to take the place of an office visit or psychotherapy session. If client requests that psychotherapist read and respond to every email message sent between sessions, psychotherapist may need to bill client for that time at the same hourly rate that was agreed upon for office visits.

In case of an emergency, DO NOT use email, but immediately call 911 for emergency response, and after that please leave a phone message for psychotherapist at (916) 780-1059, if client is able to do so.

Client should be aware that although psychotherapist takes every precaution to ensure the confidentiality of email messages, there is the possibility that email communications can be intercepted. For this reason, clients should consider carefully whether or not client would like to communicate via email. Any email psychotherapist receives from client and any response psychotherapist sends to client (excluding appointment reminders or clarifications) will be kept in clients treatment record. Your therapist will let you know if they receive texts. Texts are used only for appointment changes and/or special check-ins requested by your therapist.

Insurance Please inform psychotherapist if you wish to utilize health insurance to pay for services. If HOPE Counseling is a contracted provider for your insurance company, psychotherapist will discuss the procedure for billing your insurance. The amount of reimbursement and the amount of any co-payments or any deductible depends on the requirements of your specific insurance plan. You should be aware that insurance plans generally limit coverage to certain diagnosable mental conditions and often do not cover relational counseling (couples/marriage/family counseling). Some insurance will not cover therapy provided by a pre-licensed psychotherapist (Associate MFT or MFT Trainee). You should also be aware that you are responsible for verifying and understanding the limits of your insurance coverage. We are happy to assist your efforts to seek insurance reimbursement, although we are unable to guarantee whether your insurance will provide payment for the services provided to you. If you are using an EAP, the number of sessions is determined by your EAP. Your psychotherapist can discuss options for continuation of treatment, if desired, after your session allowance is reached. If for some reason you find that you are unable to continue paying for therapy, you should inform your therapist. Your therapist will help you consider options that may be available to you. It may be necessary for your psychotherapist to disclose certain information to your insurance company. This information may include, but is not limited to: dates of service, diagnosis, and recommendations for future care. Please discuss any questions or concerns regarding insurance and/or EAP with your psychotherapist.

Termination of Therapy We reserve the right to terminate therapy at our discretion. Reasons for termination include, but are not limited to, untimely payment of fees, failure to comply with treatment recommendations, conflicts of interest, failure to participate in therapy, client needs are outside of psychotherapist's scope of competence or practice, or client is not making adequate progress in therapy. Client has the right to terminate therapy at his/her discretion. Upon either party's decision to terminate therapy, we will generally recommend that client participate in at least one, or possibly more, termination sessions. These sessions are intended to facilitate a positive termination experience and give both parties an opportunity to reflect on the work that has been done. We will attempt to ensure a smooth transition to another psychotherapist by offering referrals to client.
